How to learn english method

Learning English as a second language can be a challenging task. But once you get the hang of it, every effort and time you spend studying the language will be worth it. By being fluent in English, travelling will be more fun. Also, you don't have to wait for the latest best-selling book or Hollywood movie to be translated in your native language to enjoy them. To help you in this endeavour, here are some practical tips on how to learn English effectively. When you study English, or any language for that matter, you shouldn't learn individual words because memorising them makes no sense without context. Instead, you should study whole phrases. Memorising the meaning of words is much easier if you know what they mean and how they are used in a sentence. While reading textbooks can help you learn the English language, you mustn't rely solely on them. Textbooks are great for teaching you about grammar and vocabulary, but they may not be too much of a help when it comes to carrying out a conversation. If you want to learn how to speak English, learn by listening and not by reading. By listening more, you'll be able to learn useful vocabulary and grammar without even realising or memorising them. Finding out your current English proficiency level is crucial before you embark on any learning plan as it will determine the type of program you should follow. For e.g. A comprehensive English program if your level is around Intermediate level or lower and a customised learning plan for Upper-Intermediate level and above. You can easily find out your level with us, click here for a free placement test When it comes to learning any language, it's all about quality over quantity. Instead of learning dozens of new words in a short time, you should focus on learning one word and repeating it dozens of time. This prevents you from suffering from information overload. In addition, this strategy allows you to place the meaning of words and phrases deeper into your brain. As a result, you won't forget them easily. One of the best ways to learn grammar is to listen to short stories told in various tenses. This will help you improve your English grammar automatically and more naturally. For example, if a story starts with "I don't like banana but I want to eat one," the other story should be "I didn't like bananas but I wanted to eat one." If you want to improve your English, don't use the strategy used by English textbooks, which is to "repeat after the speaker." Instead of mindlessly parroting the words or phrases spoken by the speaker, you should answer questions asked. For example, if you're listening to a podcast or video, pause it every 20 to 30 seconds and create a brief summary of what has been said. There are many online courses available on the internet. A quick search in google will show you a list of training providers. However, it can get quite costly if you are fully dependent on the 1:1 Skype lessons to improve. One way to cut cost is to supplement your lessons with an online self learning English program. Overall you enjoy cost savings of more than 50% using the online program to supplement your ongoing classes. Blackboard Learn is a learning management system for students, teachers, government and business employees. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET If I had a dollar for every time a student asked me what the best methods for learning English were, I would be very rich! Click Here for Step-by-Step Rules, Stories and Exercises to Practice All English Tenses Every student is different and what works well for one person may not work for someone else. But there are some general tips, and some steps you can follow to make learning English easier. Some people can learn on their own with a book or a computer, but it takes a great deal of dedication, motivation and a systematic approach. Most people learn faster, remember more, and have more fun in a class. It isn't important where the class is, but your learning will improve if you do it with other people. You will only really start learning the natural language people speak if you visit a country where English is spoken. Of course, if you can combine (1) and (2) by going to classes in an English-speaking country, then this is even better! Look for language schools in the country you want to visit. Most English-speaking countries have many schools to choose from. If this isn't possible, then a holiday in an English-speaking country is great, but make sure you speak English while you are there! This is the big one. It is probably the most important. If you don't practice what you learn, you are unlikely to remember it. Use new words and grammar as soon as you can, and keep using them. Set yourself challenges to speak English for a certain length of time each day, to use a certain number of new words each day, or to listen to English TV, radio, or internet broadcasts each day. This way you will improve more quickly. Besides listening, read as much as you can in English. I'm not suggesting you start trying to read Shakespeare, but find a book you like, a magazine, a newspaper, or even a website, and read something new as often as you can. Look up words you don't know, to increase your vocabulary. Don't try to guess them from the context. Your dictionary may very well be your best friend :) It is important to repeat the things you learn so you don't forget them. But it is also very important to try and learn new things. If you have completed an intermediate class, don't do another class at the same level. Push yourself to try a harder class. Buy more difficult books. Try watching movies without the subtitles on. All of these things will be difficult at first but because you are challenging yourself, you will learn more. These five steps will help you learn English, but the thing that will help you the most is to know why you are learning English. If you have a reason to do something, it gives you motivation. Studies have shown that motivation has the biggest influence on how well and how quickly students learn something! So if you have a reason to learn, you will find learning English much easier than if you don't have one. So what is your reason? Please share this page with others:
